

Internships

Mission

---

RootEducation is an online learning platform for Christian teachers, ministry leaders, non-profit leaders, caregivers, and families who want adapted biblical curriculum for their children with disabilities. RootEd's ethos is to make high quality curriculum and mentor the leaders who use them.

Overview

---

Internships at RootEducation offer opportunities in online leadership, research, and global community building. Skills gained from these experiences directly transfer into careers across education, nonprofit, and media management fields.

Location	Remote / Valdosta, GA
Compensation	Unpaid
Hours per week	5 - 20 hours/week
Duration	3 - 6 months
Schedule	Weekly 1 hour meetings (phone calls as needed)

Open Internships

---

Curriculum Development Assistant

Currently enrolled in teacher education program OR

Bachelor's in Special Education w/GPA of 3.0 OR

Currently working in special education ministry

Are you interested in special education, want to learn more about product development, or currently enrolled in a teacher education program?

We are seeking an intern in curriculum development to directly assist the project manager. Throughout the term, the intern will gain hands-on experience with development and exposure to multi-modal learning across both virtual and in-person environments.

The successful candidate demonstrates an interest in Christian ministry and special education, with strong organizational skills and an eye for detail, enabling them to support product initiatives independently and efficiently.

Curriculum Development Specialist

3 years experience teaching special education adapted curriculum OR

Master's degree in Special Education/Education

Must have experience working with online technology models and applications

Are you a Christian teacher and feel called to support special education ministry?

We are seeking an intern in curriculum development to directly assist the Founder. Throughout the term, the intern will gain experience with curriculum for both students and adult learners. Special attention will be given to the transference between online and in-person products.

At the end of the internship, you will be asked to complete a final curriculum project. This project culminates into a complete product line, incorporating multi-modal levels of learning. This can be applicable to either student or adult learners.

The successful candidate demonstrates an interest in Christian ministry and special education, with strong organizational skills and creativity. They must work independently and understand modern teaching tools. They must have a keen eye for detail, enabling them to support curriculum development effectively and efficiently.

---

Qualitative Researcher

Master's degree in psychology, public health, sociology, or related fields

3rd or 4th year undergrad student on case-by-case basis

Must have experience working with qualitative research, literature reviews, and meta-analysis

Experience in nonprofit management a plus

We are seeking an intern to gather data regarding global special needs care, vulnerable children and families, special needs therapeutic approaches, and caregiver and family needs within the population. This position is for someone who wishes to conduct wide-ranging and high-impact research, and further refine their analytical skills to communicate needs to a non-research audience. They will assist in planning methodology for gathering data, collect and establish a database to catalogue, update, and retrieve data.

Throughout the term, the intern will analyze information to determine trend, discrepancies or other specific issues. They will manage this information using statistical analysis processes. The successful candidate conducts presentations, develops visual designs, and white papers to enhance reporting.

Interns will have the opportunity to pursue and develop their own projects in their areas of interest with support from the team.

---

Marketing & Digital Management

Bachelor's in communications, marketing, graphic design, or software development

Must have experience working with SEO, social media, and campaign development

Are you interested in reaching a global audience through marketing and digital media?

We are seeking an intern in marketing & digital management to directly assist the team. Throughout the term, the intern will gain hands-on experience developing campaigns, managing social media, creating infographics, and supporting website development. Experience with SEO, campaign launches, and podcasts are highly preferred.

The successful candidate demonstrates an interest in Christian ministry and global populations, with strong creativity and organizational skills, enabling them to reach a larger target audience effectively.

---

Global Communications

Do you believe in RootEducation's mission and want to develop positive relationships with the people it serves?

3 years experience in communications,
Master's in Global Studies preferred

Experience with global communities a plus

We are seeking an intern in global communications to directly report to the founder. Throughout the term, the intern will gain hands-on experience building community, translating materials, and connecting with global organizations.

The successful candidate demonstrates an interest in Christian ministry and global populations, and has prior experience working with global populations. They understand different cultural customs, practices and how that relates to relationships. These skills enable the effective intern to build community, thus reaching a larger target audience efficiently.

---

Required Documents

- College transcripts
- Portfolio of previous work experience (or work that is in progress)

Application

---

Email with the internship you're applying for as the title, your required documentation, and why you're applying for the position. If we'd like to move forward with the application process, we will schedule a time for a virtual interview.

Thank you for your interest!

Email

rooteducationinfo@gmail.com

---